When summer's temperatures are on the rise, there's nothing worse than a broken air conditioner. But now, if you do find yourself plagued by a faulty appliance on a sweltering day, the geniuses at Supercompressor came up with a way to make your own air conditioner using five simple items that you probably already have in your house. Media Platforms Design Team The contraption is made in five easy steps and only requires a bag of ice, a rubber dryer tube, a Styrofoam cooler, pom-poms, and a desk fan. Sure, the homemade gadget might look a little junky, but in all honesty, you're probably too hot to care. Media Platforms Design Team It works like this: Placing the ice inside the cooler cools down the air inside, and then the fan blows the cool air out the pipe for you to enjoy. Pro tip: You can also throw some drinks inside so you can hydrate while you cool off. This tutorial shows a smaller cooler, but you can use whatever size cooler you have on hand. A COOLER, A FAN, AND A HUMIDIFIER - This package includes a cooling device, fan, and humidifier in one unit. A humidifier provides 800ml of moisture for the air, and a cooler that provides a cool breeze through the evaporation of water into the air. The fan is an oscillating fan that rotates 80° with three speeds. A cooler, not an air conditioner, is being used in this photograph. While it will blow ice cold air and lower the temperature of your surroundings, it won't cool down an entire room. This light weight design allows you to position it wherever you want in your home. IT IS IDEAL FOR COOLING AND HEATING. You can use it for your home office, your home gym, your bedroom, or your This is great to have when it's hot outside when you want a breeze to cool you off. You can reduce your energy bill by using the Briza since it only consumes 80 Watts, compared to air conditioners that consume over 3500 Watts of power. Especially useful for days when you only need to cool one room, the Briza is perfect for campers and RVs Water tank features 8 liters of capacity, so you will not have to refill the water tank repeatedly all day long. A one year warranty is included with each Briza air cooler, so that when something goes wrong, you do not have to worry It is necessary to keep the plastic tray inside or does it need to be removed? There was no mention of this in the directions or cleaning instructions. ? Absolutely! There is a need for it! As part of my washing process, I also wash the water reservoir. In what sense does "swamp cooler" describe a water cooler? English does not have a meaning for this word. ? Using evaporative cooler pads (also known as swamp coolers), swamp coolers cool the air by taking warm outside air and passing it through them. The purpose of this unit is to do just that. Could this be used to cool or even warm out-of-door areas, such as a partially enclosed carport, or even a small open deck area? When used outside, only the larger ones will be able to blow cool air effectively due to the wind directing it in an unproductive direction. When you use a small one outside, you will be able to cool small places directly in front of it, but not a room. Designed for cooling single normal-sized rooms in doors, these units are ideal for reducing the temperature in single rooms. You don't want to make the mistake I made and fill it up with water and then put ice on top of it. As it melts the melted ice will overflow when it pours. Fill it 3/4 full and then layer the ice. Physicists generally recommend putting cold water in the tank but actually it does not have to be cold. Room temperature water is perfectly The sound is supposed to be like that of a dying horse, isn't it? Despite having earplugs in, it is still so loud that it is impossible to sleep. ? Regularly cleaning the filters is essential. Mine is a little louder when it starts This involves taking out the filters and cleaning if you keep your hands clean, you'll be able to tell the difference! How many square feet will my Briza cover? The BRIZA MIX-07 covers 129 sq feet. What are the filters made of? The Briza filters are made from natural wood fibers. Your Briza comes with a 30 day buy back guarantee. If you purchased your device online, you have a two year replacement warranty on your Briza. If you purchased it at a trade show or exhibition, your Briza comes with a one year warranty, however you can extend it by contacting us. How do I set up my Briza Air Cooler? Flip the Briza upside down and remove the screws and water tank base. When removing the tank for the first time, you may have to use pliers. Lift the water tank base, remove the plate-sized plastic piece and discard. During shipping, the filtration pump parts may have fallen off. Please make sure the filtration pump parts are all securely in place before operating. Place the water tank back on to the unit and put the screws back by hand. Make sure that the screws are tight enough to secure the tank to the unit. Remove back panel and add 8 L / 2.2 gal of water. The max water line is in a little window at the bottom of the front of the Briza. Replace the back panel, plug into power, and start! How do I clean my Briza Air Cooler? The Briza should be cleaned once every month or when needed. Use lukewarm water and a mild detergent or lukewarm water and vinegar to avoid dust, dirt, and calcium build-up. If you are using the Briza in a garage or basement where there is more dust, then cleaning should be increased to weekly. It is best to run the fan for 30 minutes after cleaning and after each use. Remove the four screws around the base and lift the top of the unit off the water tank. Make sure not to flip the unit over if there is still water in it. Wipe the inside of the tank with lukewarm water and a mild detergent or lukewarm water and vinegar. Replace water tank base and screws. Turn on the fan-only function for 30 minutes to completely dry the device before storing or running. How much water does it take? The BRIZA MIX-07 has an 8L water tank capacity. How do I replace/remove the filters? Remove the side panels. Lift the elastic band covering the filters. Place your finger on the top of the filter and pull down. The filter will slide out. Repeat with remaining filters. Replace the elastic. How often should I replace the filters? You should replace your filters only as needed, about every 6-12 months. If you begin to notice a smell, or if your filters look like they are beginning to mold, it means they need to be cleaned or replaced if the damage is severe. Image not available for Color: To view this video download Flash Player The Briza uses water and cooling pads to cycle the water through a filtration system. This process actually cools the ambient temperature of your personal space rather than a fan (which simply pushes air around) and all with less power consumption than a standard Air Conditioning unit! It's perfect for apartments with open concept planning, and the oscillation feature available on both the panel and the handy remote keeps the cold air flowing into all the corners of your living area. Perfect for personal rooms and spaces, especially for guests coming to stay! They almost look like little robots - perfect for adventurous children! Briza units are also incredibly quiet, don't take up large amounts of space and are completely eco friendly and health-conscious for your little ones thanks to the chemical-free process that the Briza undertakes. Making your kids rooms less stuffy at night normally allows them to sleep better and for longer, meaning you will be rewarded for more time for extra activities! An office can prove to be a challenge on hot or muggy days. Hot, muggy or lack of air flow are some of the biggest contributors to decreased office productivity. Luckily for you the Briza's performance won't be an issue (you may even want the Briza to replace some of your "workers"), as it strives to cool, freshen and evenly distribute air around the office. Plus once again the Briza isn't as restrictive as an air conditioning unit, it is completely portable (as long as you can plug it in!) and is a lot quieter as well, resulting in less distractions and more productivity! Because of the way the Briza works by adding humidity to the air, the Briza does cool best when used in hot, dry conditions! Get your Briza today and feel the difference!
